to add to the collective time experiment.

Create a map of your housing journey with all the places you have lived or called home, and/or places you would like to call home in the future.

How might it compare/contrast with the journeys of people who have been displaced or evicted?

What does your housing journey say about you?

How does it overlap or veer off from the housing journeys of others in the group?

Your Identity?

Sense of community?

Your sense of home?
